

VOLUNTEERING...THE AUSTRALIAN WAY

Volunteers: shaping the nation!

We're working on a national approach to volunteering in Australia

- One in four Australians volunteer in some way
- Their contribution shapes our nation
 - through active citizenship
 - building strong communities
 - by supporting our economy

How we volunteer is changing

- Australia values and supports volunteers in many different ways
- Through technology we can overcome time, geographical and physical limitations
- Our population is very mobile
- As we grow older, if we're healthy, we'll keep volunteering longer
- The way we volunteer is changing as we balance work/family and life commitments
- More businesses recognise corporate volunteering as a way to support their staff and their communities

The focus of our work

- Engaging new volunteers
- Building community resilience in the face of challenges
- Addressing protection, risk management and training issues
- Responding to emerging trends and issues
- Ensuring volunteers are recognised, supported and valued by all Australians

Engaging our Volunteers

- Around one-third of Australian adults volunteer
- Motivations for volunteers vary – but everyone can contribute in their own way
- Barriers to volunteering can also present new opportunities

Emergency Management Volunteers

- We all recognise the important work of our 500,000 emergency management volunteers
- We need to ensure the sector remains strong and capable of meeting future challenges

Building community resilience

- Community resilience is about having locally organised ways of meeting the challenge in front of us.

Training and Protecting Volunteers from Risk

- Volunteering should be safe for volunteers and the communities they serve
- Volunteers need to be able to build and maintain skills
- Volunteers need to be well led and properly managed

Volunteers deserve recognition!

- Australia has a unique tradition of volunteers.
- Our volunteers are involved in schools, environment, community organisations, overseas aid, arts, culture, libraries, museums, health, emergency services and many other advocacy groups.
- Volunteers are fabulous!
